

Jackie Day, DPT, NCS, CMPT

Jackie received her Doctorate of Physical Therapy from the University of Montana. She also graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in Psychology from Carroll College. Jackie strongly believes in a personalized treatment approach that is functionally based and designed to enhance the performance level of each patient. Professional areas of interest include neurologic and vestibular rehabilitation as well as concussion management. She also enjoys sports rehabilitation focusing on biomechanics and functional movement patterns. She will continue to improve her clinical skills by attending continuing education courses and utilizing evidence based practice. Jackie has been a member of the American Physical Therapy Association since 2009.

Away from work, Jackie enjoys running, gardening, cooking, and spending time with her husband and two dogs.
